Five old portraits drawn from the wood: wine and liquor for family and medicinal use; champagne and cigars at W. E. Talbot's, the only reliable wholesale house in New Mexico.

SEND THEM AWAY.

The Journal has printed a large number of supplements containing a review of the proceedings of the Exposition, the list of premiums awarded, etc., and they are now ready for sale at the Journal counting room. The supplement contains in addition to the proceedings of the exposition, an article descriptive of the growth and development of Albuquerque, the mineral and agricultural resources of the Territory and a great deal of additional valuable information, making fourteen columns of solid reading matter. It is just the thing to send East to your friends. Several large orders were received for the supplements before they were printed and the supply will be limited.

NEWS OF NEWS.

L. J. Cella, Pueblo, Col., is at the Rio Grande for a few days.

T. D. James, Canon del Cidre, came in from the western wilds yesterday afternoon.

T. K. Anderson, Tucson, Arizona, is riding himself on the streets of the metropolis.

That spiral iron stairway in Talbot's new building is something new for this section of the country.

A Mexican and an Irishman were engaged in making jelly out of each other's countenances yesterday afternoon on Second street.

Mariano Armijo went up to the Ancient yesterday morning, to attend the Democratic convention. If he gets up earlier he won't have to walk over from the old town.

W. C. Leonard will have to get married before he can serve on a jury in New Mexico. He was barred out this time because he happens to be enjoying a state of single blessedness.

Spiegelberg Bros. will raffle off two elegant silk dresses and offer to each of the customers who purchase $20 worth of goods at one time a ticket free. The goods will be sold as low as ever.

J. M. Latta and Major Miner have located a large ranch at Blue Water cañon near the continental divide they intended putting a barbed wire fence around it and stocking with good stock at an early day.

The United States Court met yesterday morning at 10 A. M. The only business transacted being the empanelling of the petit jury, and the admission to the bar of A. J. Barr, of Missouri. The court was adjourned by Judge Bell until Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

James L. Palmer, a coon, yesterday stole several small articles from William Black, foreman of the Atlantic & Pacific blacksmith shop. He was arrested and taken before Judge Sullivan who gave him just ten minutes to commence traveling away from Albuquerque.

T. O. Hurst, the press operator, is a most efficient and reliable operator. He has obtained the best telegraphic service for the Journal which it has yet had, and never fails to get a full report when it can be obtained by any possibility. The report, "wires down" is not received at this office now as often as it used to be.

When Stricklin, the postal route agent resigned, a Mr. Updyke received the appointment to fill the vacancy and Jimmie McKenzie was appointed to take the position pending the arrival of Updyke. The latter has not put in an appearance and a petition is now being circulated, and extensively signed, praying that Jimmie be appointed to the position regularly.

C. E. Day has been appointed general superintendent of the United States Telegraph department in Arizona with headquarters at Whipple barracks. Mr. Day has for some time been manager in the telephone office in this city and has made many friends both among his comrades and the patrons of the company, all of whom wish him the best luck in his new position.

That comet was visible yesterday morning at 4 o'clock. Its position is in the eastern heavens. There were a large number of persons on Railroad avenue to catch a glimpse of the wonderful stranger. It is certainly the most beautiful and magnificent sight that the heavens have given us for many years. The star at the head of the second magnitude, and the length of the tail, which stretches from north to south, is beyond conception.

We learn from a letter received in city yesterday written by Dr. Jere Sullivan on the 17th that a heavy frost making ice the night before, with a cold blizzard from San Francisco mountains, had robbed the Mogi nation in Arizona, of their entire melon crop—which to them is a luxury and an important item of subsistence. They begin to eat the melons as soon as the seed is formed until the first of March. They save them in dry sand during the winter.

Ed. Strasburg, who has been on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. "Gus" Strasburg, in this city, returns to his home at Albuquerque, New Mexico, to-morrow. It was his intention to make his stay here among relatives longer, but his business has called him away sooner than he expected. He left this city when quite a youth, a number of years ago, and at that time his health was such that his friends did not think he would be very long lived, but they were evidently mistaken, for to-day he is a hearty, robust-looking man. He went from here to Colorado and then further west, where he settled and has a thriving business. The News wishes him a pleasant journey back, and hopes to see him on a visit to the old homestead again when his stay can be longer.—East Saginaw (Mich.) News.

THE BRIDGE.

The Manner of Its Construction and Material Used.

History of the Project from Its Earliest Conception.

What It Will Do for Albuquerque and Vicinity.

Of all the improvements that have been made in and about this city, during the last six months, perhaps the most important, looking at the future of Albuquerque, is the bridge now being constructed across the Rio Grande. Over a year ago a bridge company was organized and a large amount of money was subscribed, but, with this the matter ended, nothing further being done until the organization of the Board of Trade last spring. The Board of Trade appointed a number of committees, but here again the matter seemed to sleep and it remained for private enterprise to seize the opportunity and put the plans into practical operation. The contract was let some time ago to Mr. C. Armstrong, an experienced bridge builder, he contracting to finish the structure by the first day of November. No sooner had the contract been signed than Mr. Armstrong had his men and teams at work getting out and hauling material.

The entire length of the bridge when finished will be 1,365 feet. The structure is built in two sections, one section reaching from the eastern shore to a small island in the river, while the other section spans the river from the island to the western bank. The first section, which is already completed, is 610 feet long. From this section to the western one, a distance of about 150 feet, for some reason best known to the bridge company, vehicles are compelled to use the island roads, as there will be no bridge for that distance. The western section, which is to be 755 feet in length, has been finished for about 125 feet, and is being put in place at the rate of forty feet or more per day. Contractor Armstrong says the bridge will be completed long before the time set. Already two-thirds of the material is on the ground, and things are being pushed forward to an early completion. The island in the center of the river has been a great help, the distance across it being nearly 400 feet. There have been already driven 185 piles, each pile being from nineteen to twenty feet in the ground, and from four to five feet above. The hammer of the pile driver has a fall of thirty feet, and weighs 2,280 pounds. Mr. Armstrong now has twelve teams employed, either hauling material or working about the bridge. The construction of the bridge is such that there need never be any fear of accident by floods or otherwise. The piles will average from fifteen to eighteen inches in diameter; the caps, which are of well seasoned lumber, are 12x12, while the stringers are larger than ordinary, being 7x16. The road way of the bridge is laid with three inch planking, all the lumber used being of the best. Two lines of piling will be placed the entire length of the bridge, along the north side, and this will be braced to the bridge, the intention being to have these act as a breakwater. The eastern section of the bridge was used by a large number of foot passengers and several teams yesterday.

At the eastern end of the bridge there is quite a town of tents where the men employed on the work are living. The Journal reporter was invited to supper last evening by Contractor Armstrong and did ample justice to a first-rate meal. That the completion of this undertaking will be of incalculable value to this city there can be no doubt. The immense expanse of agricultural country lying along the Rio Puerco, together with the towns of San Ygnacio, Salazar, Cabezon, La Ventana and Nacimiento, and the mineral camp, Copper City, will all now be tributary to Albuquerque. The men whose money has been embarked in this last enterprise, are those who have always had the interests of this city most at heart, and whose time and money have been always ready to advance the material interests of the metropolis.

NAVAJO INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTE.

The New Building—Model School Edifice—A Well Equipped School, Etc.

The Indian school, at the Navajo agency has, since its establishment a year ago, been occupying an old adobe building, which was quite insufficient in size and poorly adapted to school purposes. A substantial two-story stone edifice is now being erected, large enough to accommodate one hundred pupils and arranged in accordance with the most approved plans for buildings of this kind. The main structure is 70 by 50 feet in dimensions, with Mansard roof. A hall extends the whole length of each floor, the first story being divided into six rooms, and the second into four large rooms and two small ones. The upper floor, or Mansard part of the building, will be fitted up as a dormitory. An attachment to the main building 50 by 30 feet is also being erected which will be used for dining room, kitchen and laundry purposes. The Navajo school is an industrial institution, and in many respects similar to the Albuquerque Indian school. Agriculture, the trades, sewing and domestic work generally, so far as practicable, are taught, besides the rudiments of an English education. The school already has an organ, four sewing machines, and forty school desks of modern style and finish. These will be placed in the new building, along with a number of other articles of furniture yet to be purchased. When fully completed and furnished the Navajo Institute will be one of the best equipped Indian schools in the west, and a credit to both the government and the Presbyterian Home Missionary society, which are jointly concerned in its erection. In accordance with orders from Washington, work on the new building is at present suspended. It is thought, however, that the delay will be but temporary and that the house will be ready for use during the coming winter. A small but handsome display of head and sewing, and other ornamental and useful work made by the pupils of the Navajo school, was on exhibition at the fair.

RAILROAD REVIEW.

THE ATLANTIC & PACIFIC SHOPS.

Few people in this city understand what an immense amount of work is being done at the Atlantic & Pacific railroad shops. Through the kindness of an official, a Journal reporter, was yesterday enabled to gather a few items which may be of interest to the general reader. The shops are situated in the southern part of the city and those which are here spoken of are built of stone, being taken from quarries along the line of the road. Although the buildings are not yet of the size intended, they are still very large and roomy. In the northern end of the machine shop there is a large store room, filled in every nook and corner with articles used in the different departments of the road. Buckets, brooms, lanterns, rope of all sizes, nuts, bolts and a thousand other articles needed in the construction and transportation departments. One is struck almost immediately on entering the store room with the business like arrangement and neatness of every part of the room; it would do credit to a mercantile house. Adjoining the store room on the south is the immense machine shop of the company, in which all their machinery is repaired and kept in running order. Every machine contained in the building is of the latest pattern, most of it being manufactured in Philadelphia. There are lathe of every kind and description from the smallest to that used for turning the large driving axles, ponderous steam hammers and shears, and a curious and ingenious nut and bolt machine. All these machines are furnished motive power by an immense direct acting engine, manufactured by Jacob Naylor, of Philadelphia. The boiler is a large one of the locomotive pattern, the gauge registering from seventy-five to eighty pounds of steam. Just south of the machine shops is another large building of about the same size as the former, this is the blacksmith shop or forge. There are in this building two large blacksmith forges, the first in all of which, with two exceptions, were burning brightly yesterday morning.

Near the center of this shop there is an immense steam welding hammer. In this shop yesterday there were being manufactured hundreds of cupplings and pins, besides a lot of larger work. Every man in and about both shops seemed to be kept constantly busy. In the machine shop was the large engine, Navajo, stripped of all theinery and undergoing a thorough repairing. This industry, the largest in the city, is less spoken of and talked about by the citizens than any other. The reason undoubtedly is, that it is the property of a corporation and not of individuals.

The Presbyterian church excursion from Las Vegas to Chihuahua leaves that place next Monday. Round trip tickets are sold at $22 each. Berths in sleeping car cost $26 extra, or $13 for one half a berth. This is a crowd in them in pretty thick.

The western passenger agent of the Ohio and Mississippi road is in the city. W. C. Nixon holds that the freight business at this station has materially increased since he left to accept the agency at Las Cruces.

Paymaster Jim Moore came in yesterday afternoon from the south with the money bags of the Santa Fe road and left a little of the cash in Albuquerque.

Eleven cars of merchandise were received at this station Tuesday. Four cars were loaded with wool for the east the same day and three with merchandise for the Lake Valley district and the Atlantic and Pacific road.

The ticket office in the union passenger depot will be in the front part of the building, when the repairs are completed, and the lunch counter will be in the rear and open into both waiting rooms. When all the improvements now contemplated by the company in this city are completed, Albuquerque will have the best railroad yards anywhere on the line of the road west of Topeka.

Two new telegraph offices were established by Supt. Hardy, of the Atlantic & Pacific telegraph department, this week. These are at present known as Sunnait, which is three miles beyond Williams, and Fairview, one mile west of Johnson's Cañon, and thirteen and a half miles from Williams.

Johnson's Cañon is larger than Cañon Diablo. Its bridges, however, are much smaller than the Diablo viaduct. The railroad track follows one side of Johnson's Cañon and the two bridges cross ravines that open into the cañon.

Chapter Meeting.
The next regular convocation of Rio Grande Chapter No. 4, R. A. M., will be held in Masonic Hall on Thursday, September 28, 1892, at 7:30 p. m. Important business has accumulated during the short nights of the season, and it is hoped that every companion in the city will be present.

BOARD OF TRADE.

Proceedings of the Special Meeting Last Night.

The Board of Trade Rooms Tendered the Miners' Association.

The Subject of Fire Protection Thoroughly Discussed—The Finances of the Board.

There was a special meeting of the Board of Trade held last night at the rooms of the association. Col. Molyneux Bell called the assembly to order and stated briefly the objects of the meeting.

Gov. E. S. Stover, chairman of the regular committee on mines and mineral stated the necessity of some action being taken in regard to the miners' Association recently organized in this city. He thought the Board of Trade should give the association the use of the Board which Trade rooms for the purpose of storing therein the mineral and cabinets of the miners of the Territory propose collecting in this city for the benefit of miners, speculators and capitalists in search of mining property. The association was to be of great importance to Albuquerque and for that reason should be encouraged by the people here, and the least the citizens here could do would be to furnish suitable rooms.

On motion it was unanimously decided that the Board of Trade rooms be furnished the Miners' association free of charge and the secretary was instructed to notify the president of the Miners' association of the action taken by the Board.

President Bell announced that the regular committee on fire department and building, was not filed and named as such committee W. C. Leonard, Edward Meller and Thomas Keleher. He then called the attention of the Board to the great necessity of better fire protection in the city and suggested that some action be taken in the matter at once.

Several schemes were suggested for providing protection against fire, and all agreed that immediate action was necessary. The committee on fire department and buildings was instructed to confer with the Hook and Ladder company now organized, in regard to further action and report at the next regular meeting of the Board of Trade October 9.

The special committee appointed to secure the money necessary to remove the tubs smelter to Albuquerque reported that the money had been raised and the smelter was now being removed to this city.

The secretary stated to the Board that the finances of the association were in a very bad condition and urged the necessity of some action being taken to remedy the matter. This question was deferred until the next meeting.
